

Rep. Delvis Dutton
R-166

Biography

Delvis Dutton is a Christian, husband, father, family man, small business owner, farmer, conservationist, and an avid outdoorsman. Having grown up in southeast Georgia, Delvis understands the values that we hold near and dear to our hearts and is committed to representing these unique conservative South Georgia values in Atlanta.

Delvis' faith is the center point of his being. His relationship with Jesus Christ and God creates the foundation for his approach to life and his decision making. It is this relationship that has guided his enthusiasm towards being a public servant.

Delvis Dutton was born in Savannah and has lived in Glennville and in House District 166 most of his life. He spent a short time in Atlanta before coming back to South Georgia where he graduated from Pinewood Christian Academy in Bellville, Georgia.

After high school Delvis attended Georgia Southern University and worked for United Parcel Service for seven years. Never afraid to take on a new challenge, at the age of 22, Delvis left UPS to begin a journey to create a water-well drilling and service company named General Pump and Well. For the past 10 years, General Pump and Well has drilled and serviced water wells for more than 2,000 customers in southeast Georgia.

Being willing to serve comes naturally for Delvis. The Dutton family has a long history of public service in Tattnall County. The Duttons have served the citizens of Tattnall County for more than 50 years including Delvis' grandfather Mandell Dutton, who served as Chairman of the Tattnall County Commission. In addition, his mother Brenda Kicklighter was a public servant for the Department of Agriculture and Department of Corrections for many years in Atlanta.

In addition to owning and operating a small business, Delvis has been around farming his entire life. Having grown up on a working family farm for over 20 years, Delvis has a thorough understanding of the challenges facing farmers in the district. He developed hands on farming experience including poultry and other livestock and cultivated crops such as soy beans, corn and wheat. He is currently working on a project named Serendipity Energy, to create alternative fuel sources for his company's and farm equipment.

Delvis Dutton is uniquely qualified to serve as your state representative due to his experience growing up on a working family farm, working for an international corporation, starting and running a small business, his strong faith, commitment to his campunique conservative South Georgia values.

Delvis is married to the former Danielle Harrell, a public school teacher from Reidsville, and together they have two children. Delvis, Danielle and their family attend Trinity Baptist Church in Nevils.
